How to use: Copy any prompt, paste into Claude or ChatGPT, replace [BRACKETS] with your specifics. Every prompt is designed to produce usable output on the first try.

SECTION 1: WRITING & COPYWRITING (Prompts 1-60)

1. Write a landing page headline and subheadline for [product/service] targeting [audience]. The headline should communicate the core benefit in under 10 words. The subheadline should clarify who it's for and what they get. Give me 5 variations.
2. Write the hero section copy for a landing page selling [product/service]. Include: headline, subheadline, 3 bullet points of benefits (not features), and a CTA button. Tone: [confident/conversational/urgent]. Target customer: [describe them].
3. I'm writing a landing page for [product]. My target customer is [describe]. Write 10 different email subject lines using these angles: curiosity, specific number, personal story, bold claim, question, fear, social proof, urgency, before/after, and contrarian.
4. Write a cold outreach email to [type of prospect] offering [service]. The email should be under 100 words, mention a specific observation about their business, and end with one clear CTA (a question, not "let me know if you're interested"). Do not use "I hope this email finds you well."
5. Rewrite this sales email to be more specific and compelling. Remove all filler phrases. Make the benefit crystal clear in the first sentence. Add one concrete result or example. Keep it under 150 words. Here's the original: [paste email]
6. Write a 5-email welcome sequence for new subscribers to [newsletter/product]. Email 1: Welcome + what to expect. Email 2: Your best piece of content or tip. Email 3: A personal story that builds trust. Email 4: A common mistake your audience makes. Email 5: Soft pitch for [product/service].
7. Write an About page for [your name/brand]. I am a [what you do] who helps [target audience] achieve [outcome]. My background: [brief background]. My approach is [describe]. Tone: warm, direct, and credible — not corporate.
8. I need to write the "Problem" section of my landing page. My customer's main problem is [describe]. Write 3 versions: one that leads with emotion, one that leads with a specific scenario, and one that leads with a surprising statistic or claim.
9. Write 5 CTA button variations for a [free trial / paid product / booking page]. Each should be action-oriented and benefit-focused. Avoid generic CTAs like "Submit" or "Click here."
10. Write a product description for [product name]. It's a [type of product] that helps [audience] do [specific thing]. The description should: open with the customer's problem, explain what the product does, list 5 specific features as benefits, and end with a purchase CTA. Length: 200 words.

- 11. Rewrite this paragraph to be 50% shorter without losing any key information: [paste paragraph]
- 12. Write 3 versions of a value proposition for [business/service]: one focused on speed, one on quality, and one on ease. Each should be one sentence.
- 13. Write a testimonial request email to send to a happy client after project completion. Make it easy for them to say yes — include 3 specific questions they can answer. Keep it short and warm.
- 14. Take this long-form blog post intro and rewrite it to hook the reader in the first 2 sentences. The intro should make a specific, surprising claim or ask a question that creates tension. Here's the original: [paste intro]
- 15. Write a "Results" or "Social Proof" section for my website. I work with [type of clients] and typically help them achieve [result]. Write 3 short case study snippets (2–3 sentences each) in the format: "Client type had problem X → we did Y → they got result Z."
- 16. I need to write a case study for a client project. Here are the details: Client type: [X]. Problem they came to me with: [Y]. What I did: [Z]. Results achieved: [numbers/outcomes]. Write a 300-word case study with headline, problem, solution, and results sections.
- 17. Write 5 Instagram caption hooks for content about [topic]. Each hook should be a single sentence that stops someone from scrolling. Use these formats: bold claim, relatable scenario, surprising stat, counterintuitive tip, and direct question.
- 18. Write a blog post introduction for an article titled "[title]" targeting [audience]. The intro should: open with a relatable problem or scenario, establish why this matters, and preview what the post will cover — all in under 150 words.
- 19. I have a blog post draft. Rewrite the conclusion to end with a stronger CTA and a memorable final line. The post is about [topic]. The action I want readers to take is [action]. Here's the current conclusion: [paste]
- 20. Write a "How it works" section for my [service/product] page. The process has these steps: [list your steps]. Make each step sound effortless and benefit-focused. Use simple language — no jargon.
- 21. Write a FAQ section for my [product/service] landing page. Anticipate the 8 most common objections or questions a potential buyer would have and answer them directly and honestly.
- 22. I need a headline for a lead magnet. The lead magnet is [describe it] and it's for [audience]. Write 8 headline options using: specific number, time frame, outcome, "how to," "the secret to," question format, and bold promise.
- 23. Write a homepage headline for a freelance [designer/developer/copywriter/consultant] who specializes in [niche]. It should communicate their specialty and the result they deliver — not just what they do.
- 24. Take this list of features and rewrite them as benefits: [paste feature list]. Format: "Feature → Benefit" then write the benefit as a short, punchy sentence a customer would actually care about.
- 25. Write a 3-email re-engagement sequence for inactive email subscribers who haven't opened in 90 days. Email 1: Acknowledge the silence + offer something valuable. Email 2: Ask a direct question. Email 3: Soft goodbye with an unsubscribe prompt (this improves your open rates).
- 26. Write an "elevator pitch" for my business that I can use in networking situations. I do [what you do] for [who] so they can [outcome]. Make it conversational, specific, and memorable — not corporate. Under 30 seconds when spoken.

- 27. Simplify this paragraph for a non-expert audience. Replace all jargon with plain English. If a 14-year-old wouldn't understand a word, replace it: [paste paragraph]
- 28. Write a LinkedIn summary (About section) for a [freelancer/consultant/coach] who does [what]. Include: what they do, who they help, their results, their approach, and a CTA. Keep it under 300 words. First-person, conversational.
- 29. Write 5 subject line variations for an email announcing [new product/offer/content]. Use: curiosity, urgency, personal, specific outcome, and question format.
- 30. I need to write a sales page for [product]. The product costs [price] and is for [audience]. Write the full sales page structure with all section headers and a 2-3 sentence description of what to write in each section. Include: Hero, Problem, Solution, Features/Benefits, How it works, Social proof, Pricing, FAQ, Final CTA.
- 31. Write a welcome email for a new customer who just purchased [product]. Include: thank them, confirm what they bought, tell them exactly what happens next, give them the most important first step, and offer support contact.
- 32. Write 10 Twitter/X post hooks about [topic]. Each should be one punchy sentence that creates curiosity or makes a bold claim. Vary the formats: statement, question, list teaser, contrarian take, personal confession.
- 33. Write an email newsletter issue about [topic]. Structure: 1 paragraph intro that hooks with a personal story or scenario, 3-5 key points with brief explanations, 1 actionable takeaway, and a CTA to [action]. Conversational tone. Under 500 words.
- 34. Write a 7-post LinkedIn carousel about [topic]. For each slide: write the headline text (max 8 words) and the 2-3 supporting lines. Slide 1 = hook. Slides 2-6 = value. Slide 7 = CTA.
- 35. Write a "Services" page for a freelance [type] who offers [service 1], [service 2], and [service 3]. For each service: write a 50-word description that focuses on outcomes, not process. Add a "Who this is for" line for each.
- 36. I need to add urgency to this offer without being pushy or fake. Here's the current copy: [paste]. Rewrite it with genuine urgency based on [limited spots / price increase / deadline / bonuses expiring]. Keep it honest.
- 37. Write a "Before and After" copy block for my [service]. Before: [describe the customer's situation before working with you]. After: [describe the result]. Format it as a compelling, specific comparison customers will see themselves in.
- 38. Proofread and edit this email for tone, clarity, and professionalism. Flag any sentences that are unclear, too long, or could be misread. Then provide a clean edited version: [paste email]
- 39. Write 3 different opening lines for a cold DM to [type of prospect] on [platform]. Each should be specific to their work (not generic), reference something real, and not immediately pitch anything.
- 40. Write a referral request email to send to a past client who gave great feedback. Make it easy — give them specific language they can use when referring me. Keep it short, warm, and grateful.
- 41. Write a "Thank you for your purchase" page message for someone who just bought [product]. Include: affirmation of their decision, what to do next (step 1, 2, 3), an invitation to share or refer, and support contact.

- 42. I'm writing a launch email for [product]. Write the email as if it's from a friend telling you about something they genuinely love — not a corporate announcement. Focus on the transformation, not the features.
- 43. Rewrite this paragraph to be more conversational and human. Remove passive voice, corporate language, and anything that sounds like it was written by a committee: [paste paragraph]
- 44. Write 5 "power headlines" for a blog post, video, or email about [topic]. Use these proven formulas: How to [outcome] in [timeframe], The [number] [topic] mistakes that [consequence], Why [counterintuitive claim], [Number] ways to [outcome], What nobody tells you about [topic].
- 45. Write a media/press bio for [name] who is a [title/role] in [industry]. Include: who they are, what they've done (2-3 specific achievements), who they help, and a personal detail that makes them memorable. 150 words, third-person.
- 46. I need to write a "Who this is NOT for" section for my sales page. My product is [describe]. Be honest and specific — this builds trust and filters out bad-fit customers.
- 47. Write a series of 3 follow-up emails after someone downloads my free lead magnet ([describe it]). Email 1 (day 1): Deliver the resource + quick win. Email 2 (day 3): Related tip + soft mention of paid product. Email 3 (day 7): Direct pitch for [product] with a time-limited reason to act.
- 48. Write an objection-handling section for my sales page. My main objections are: [list 3-4]. Address each one directly, honestly, and confidently. Don't be defensive — be empathetic.
- 49. Write a "Results" focused email that leads with a specific client win, connects it to a broader insight, and ends with a CTA to [book a call / buy product / join waitlist]. The client result: [describe].
- 50. Take these 5 bullet points about my product and rewrite each one to be benefit-focused, specific, and compelling. Replace vague words like "easy," "powerful," and "great" with concrete descriptions: [paste bullets]
- 51. Write a brand voice guide for my business. Brand name: [name]. Target audience: [describe]. Adjectives that describe my brand (pick 3): [e.g., direct, warm, no-nonsense]. Write 5 dos and 5 don'ts for writing in my brand voice, with examples.
- 52. Write a "What makes us different" section for my website. My competitors do [X]. I do [X] differently because Y]. Format as 3-4 short, punchy differentiators with brief explanations.
- 53. Write an upsell email to send to customers who bought [product A] offering them [product B]. Make the connection clear: they already [benefit from A], now [B] will help them [next level outcome].
- 54. Rewrite this product description to make it more specific and desirable. Remove all adjectives that don't add information ("amazing," "incredible," "game-changing"). Replace with concrete details: [paste description]
- 55. Write a 30-day email drip sequence outline for nurturing new subscribers toward buying [product]. List each email's topic, angle, and CTA. Sequence should build trust before pitching.
- 56. Write 5 "social proof" one-liners I can use on my website or in emails. Based on these real results I've gotten for clients: [list 3-5 results].
- 57. I need to write a pitch for a podcast, newsletter, or media feature. I'm [who you are] and I want to talk about [topic]. My unique angle is [what makes your take different]. Write a 150-word pitch that gets a yes.

- 58. Write a compelling founder story for my About page. I started [business name] because [reason]. Before this, I [background]. The turning point was [story]. Now I help [audience] do [outcome]. Make it personal, specific, and relevant to the reader's problem.
- 59. Write a "re-engagement" email for a subscriber who signed up 6 months ago but has never bought anything. Don't be needy. Offer something genuinely valuable, remind them why they signed up, and include a soft question to find out what they actually need.
- 60. Write 10 content ideas for [my niche] that I haven't seen covered yet. Each should have: a title/hook, the angle that makes it unique, and the specific audience it targets.

SECTION 2: CLIENT & BUSINESS PROPOSALS (Prompts 61-100)

- 61. Write a project proposal for [project type] for a client who [describe their situation]. Include: project overview, deliverables (numbered list), timeline, investment, and a brief "Why me" closing paragraph. Tone: confident and professional.
- 62. I had a discovery call with a potential client. Here are my notes: [paste notes]. Help me identify: (1) their core pain point, (2) what success looks like to them, (3) any red flags, and (4) the best way to position my proposal.
- 63. Write a scope of work document for [project]. Be specific enough that both parties are completely clear on what's included and what's not. Include: overview, deliverables, exclusions, revision policy, and client responsibilities.
- 64. I need to justify my price to a client who said I'm too expensive. My rate is [rate] for [service]. Write a response that reframes the conversation from cost to value, without being defensive or discounting.
- 65. Write responses to these 5 common client objections: "Your price is too high," "We need to think about it," "We had a bad experience with a freelancer before," "Can you do it faster?", and "We might just do this in-house."
- 66. Write a contract clause for [specific situation: e.g., late payment fees / kill fee / scope creep / IP ownership / confidentiality]. It should be clear, professional, and legally plain English.
- 67. Write a project brief template I can send to new clients to collect all the information I need before starting a project. Include fields for: project goals, target audience, deliverables, timeline, budget, success metrics, brand guidelines, and references.
- 68. Write 10 discovery call questions for [your service type]. Questions should help me understand: their current situation, their goal, what they've tried, what's blocking them, timeline, budget, and decision-making process.
- 69. Write a follow-up email to send 24 hours after a discovery call where the prospect seemed interested but non-committal. Include: summary of what we discussed, the problem I can solve for them, next step, and a light deadline.
- 70. Write a polite email declining a project that isn't a fit. Reason: [budget too low / outside my niche / scope is unclear / bad vibe]. Make it kind, leave the door open, and if possible, point them to an alternative.

- 71. Write a referral request email to a current happy client. Make it specific — give them exact language to use when referring. Include a small incentive if appropriate: [discount / gift card / public shoutout].
- 72. I want to upsell a current client from [service A] to [service B or retainer]. Write an email that feels natural, not pushy. Lead with the result they've already gotten, then bridge to what's possible next.
- 73. Write a project update email to send to a client at the midpoint of a project. Include: what's been completed, what's in progress, any open items needed from them, and the next milestone date.
- 74. Write an end-of-project email that wraps up cleanly, hands off all deliverables, and opens the door for future work or referrals. Include a soft ask for a testimonial.
- 75. I need to write a client interview to turn into a case study. Write 8 questions that will get specific, quotable, result-focused answers — not vague "it was great" testimonials.
- 76. Write a proposal cover letter (1 page) for [project type]. It should: acknowledge their specific situation (show you listened), briefly explain your approach, and express genuine enthusiasm. Not a generic intro.
- 77. Write a pricing page for my [service type] with 3 tiers: Basic, Pro, and Premium. Prices: [$X, $Y, $Z]. Each tier should have a clear name, 5–6 deliverables, and a 1-sentence description of who it's for. Make the middle tier look like the best value.
- 78. Write a "what to expect" email to send to prospects who have requested a proposal. Set expectations for timeline, what the proposal will cover, and what happens after they receive it. Reduce anxiety, build confidence.
- 79. Write a late payment email that is firm but professional. The invoice is [X] days overdue. The amount is [amount]. I've already sent one reminder. This is the second, more direct follow-up.
- 80. Write a contractor agreement template for hiring a [type of contractor] for [type of work]. Include: scope, rate, payment schedule, revision policy, confidentiality, IP ownership, and termination clause. Plain English.
- 81. Write a client onboarding questionnaire for [your service]. 10–12 questions that help me understand their brand, goals, audience, preferences, references, and any constraints. Avoid generic questions.
- 82. Write a "reason why" email explaining a price increase to existing clients. I'm raising my rates from [X] to [Y] effective [date]. Make it confident, give them advance notice, and offer them a lock-in option at current rates for [timeframe].
- 83. I need to fire a difficult client. Write a professional email ending our working relationship. Reason: [ongoing scope creep / disrespectful communication / non-payment]. Be firm, brief, and leave no room for negotiation. Include final invoice details.
- 84. Write a partnership proposal email to a complementary business ([type of business]) proposing a [referral agreement / collaboration / joint offer]. Make the value exchange clear and make it easy for them to say yes.
- 85. Write a project extension email proposing to extend a one-off client project into an ongoing retainer. Include: what we've accomplished, what ongoing support would look like, the monthly investment, and a clear CTA.

- 86. Write a re-engagement email to a past client I worked with [X months] ago. Goal: see if they need help again or know anyone who does. Keep it short, warm, and low-pressure.
- 87. Write a "scope confirmation" email before starting work that lists every deliverable one by one and asks the client to confirm in writing. This prevents scope disputes later.
- 88. Write a professional email responding to a prospect who ghosted after receiving a proposal [2 weeks ago]. Keep it short, add no pressure, and offer to adjust the proposal if something wasn't right.
- 89. Write a client satisfaction survey with 5 questions for after a completed project. Make it quick to complete. Focus on: results achieved, communication quality, likelihood to recommend, what went well, and what could improve.
- 90. Write a strategic partnership email to a [type of person: agency, consultant, coach] proposing a referral fee arrangement. Clear, professional, and mutually beneficial. Propose a specific referral fee or reciprocal arrangement.
- 91. Write a case study template I can fill in for every completed project: headline, client background (1 sentence), challenge (2-3 sentences), solution (2-3 sentences), results (specific numbers), testimonial quote, and services provided.
- 92. Write a follow-up email sequence (3 emails) for after sending a proposal that hasn't received a response. Email 1 (day 3): Gentle check-in. Email 2 (day 7): Add a relevant insight or resource. Email 3 (day 14): Closing email with a light deadline.
- 93. Write a project pause email for a situation where a client has gone quiet and the project is stalled. Make it clear: the project is on hold until I hear back, the timeline has shifted, and here's what I need to resume.
- 94. Write a testimonial follow-up email for a client who agreed to give a testimonial but hasn't sent it after 2 weeks. Friendly, easy, and include 3 specific prompts they can answer.
- 95. Write a negotiation response email. A prospect has proposed a lower budget than my quote. I want to either (a) hold my price and justify it or (b) reduce the scope to fit their budget. Write both versions.
- 96. Write a "we're not the right fit" email for a prospect whose project is outside my expertise or whose budget is significantly below my minimum. Be respectful, specific, and helpful — suggest what type of professional they should look for instead.
- 97. Write a contract renewal email for a client whose retainer is up for renewal next month. Include: a summary of what we've accomplished together, the renewal terms, any rate adjustments, and a CTA to confirm.
- 98. Write a discovery call follow-up email for a prospect who said they need to "check with their team" before deciding. Provide social proof, answer likely internal objections they'll face, and make it easy for them to advocate for working with you.
- 99. Write a non-disclosure agreement (NDA) in plain English for sharing sensitive business information with a contractor or partner. Cover: what's confidential, what's excluded, duration, and consequences of breach.
- 100. Write a proposal for a [type of project] that includes a "risk reversal" — a guarantee or commitment that reduces the client's perceived risk. Make the guarantee specific and tied to a real outcome.

SECTION 3: CONTENT & SOCIAL MEDIA

(Prompts 101-160)

- 101. Create a 30-day content calendar for [platform] in the niche of [your niche]. For each week, suggest a theme. For each day, give a post topic and format (video, carousel, text, image). Balance: educational, personal, promotional, and engagement posts.
- 102. Write 5 Instagram captions for a post about [topic]. Vary the tone and angle: one inspirational, one educational, one personal story, one contrarian, and one with a clear CTA. Each should end with a question to drive comments.
- 103. Write a 10-slide LinkedIn carousel about [topic]. Slide 1: Hook (bold statement or number). Slides 2-8: One insight per slide. Slide 9: Summary or key takeaway. Slide 10: CTA + follow prompt. Keep each slide to 3 lines max.
- 104. Write a YouTube video script for a video titled "[title]." Length: [8-10 minutes]. Include: hook (first 30 seconds), intro (30 seconds), main content (5-6 points), CTA at midpoint, outro with subscribe + next video prompt. Target audience: [describe].
- 105. Write a podcast episode outline for an episode on [topic]. Include: intro hook (what the listener will learn), 4-5 main discussion points with sub-points, tangents to explore, a case study or example, and outro with CTA.
- 106. Write 10 TikTok/Reels hooks for videos about [topic]. Each hook should be a single sentence, spoken to camera, that makes someone stop scrolling. Use: bold claim, "you're doing X wrong," surprising stat, relatable scenario, and controversial opinion.
- 107. I have this long-form piece: [paste blog/video/podcast transcript]. Create 5 pieces of short-form content from it: 1 Twitter thread, 1 LinkedIn post, 1 Instagram caption, 1 newsletter section, and 1 quote graphic text.
- 108. Write a 7-part Twitter/X thread about [topic]. Tweet 1: Bold hook. Tweets 2-6: One insight or tip per tweet (2-3 sentences each). Tweet 7: Summary + CTA. Keep every tweet punchy. No fluff.
- 109. Create a content series concept for [platform] in [niche]. The series should have: a name, a consistent format, a weekly cadence, and a clear reason for followers to come back. Write the concept brief and the first 4 episode topics.
- 110. Write 10 content ideas for [niche/topic] that would genuinely help my audience. For each: write the title/hook, explain the angle, and note what format works best (video, post, article, email).
- 111. Write an educational Instagram carousel about [topic] that provides real value. 8 slides: Slide 1 hook, Slides 2-7 with one tip each (actionable, specific), Slide 8 CTA. Use simple language — no jargon.
- 112. Write a "question post" for LinkedIn or Instagram that drives genuine engagement. Topic: [topic]. The question should be specific enough to get thoughtful answers, not just "yes/no." Include a 2-3 sentence setup before the question.
- 113. I want to create viral content about [topic]. Analyze what makes content go viral in this niche and write 3 post concepts with: hook, main content structure, and what emotional trigger drives shares (awe, anger, aspiration, humor, belonging).

- 114. Write a newsletter welcome email for new subscribers. What to include: what the newsletter is about, what they'll get and how often, your best piece of content to date, and 1 question asking what they most want help with.
- 115. Write 5 YouTube video title options for a video about [topic] targeting [audience]. Each title should include the target keyword, be under 60 characters, and create enough curiosity to earn a click.
- 116. Write the description for a YouTube video about [topic]. Include: 2-3 sentence hook, key points covered (bulleted), links mentioned in the video, timestamps (placeholder format), related videos, and subscribe CTA. 300+ words for SEO.
- 117. I want to build a content series called "[series name]" about [topic]. Write the first 4 episode scripts outlines — each 800-1000 words — with consistent structure: problem, insight, example, application, and CTA.
- 118. Write a "Day in my life" or "Behind the scenes" post for [platform]. My work involves [describe]. Make it genuinely interesting — not a brag, not boring. Show the reality of [your niche] with specific details.
- 119. Write a "hot take" post about [your industry/niche]. Take a position that most people in the industry avoid saying. Be specific, back it up briefly, and invite debate. Keep it under 200 words for social posts.
- 120. Write a story-driven post about a mistake I made in [my business/career] and what I learned. The mistake: [describe]. The lesson: [describe]. Format as a personal story with a clear takeaway that benefits the reader.
- 121. I'm launching [product/service/event] on [date]. Write a 5-post launch content plan for [platform]. Include: teaser post (1 week before), value post (5 days before), behind-the-scenes (3 days before), launch announcement (day of), and social proof/results post (3 days after).
- 122. Write a testimonial post for [platform] featuring this client result: [describe result]. Format as: context, the transformation, a direct quote, and a CTA. Make it feel authentic, not like an ad.
- 123. Write a "myth vs. reality" post about [topic in your niche]. List 5 common myths and the real truth for each. Keep each myth/reality pair concise. End with a CTA.
- 124. Write a "lessons learned" post after [completing a project / reaching a milestone / making a mistake]. Share 5 specific, honest lessons. Make each one actionable for the reader.
- 125. Write a post announcing [achievement / milestone / new product] that doesn't come across as a brag. Focus on the journey, the struggle, or what the milestone means for the audience.
- 126. Create an engagement post for [platform] using a "this or that" or "pick your preference" format on the topic of [topic]. Make it fun and relevant to your niche.
- 127. Write a "how I got started" post about [your career/business]. Include: where you started (be honest), what made you change direction, the moment things clicked, and where you are now. Keep it relevant to what your audience wants to achieve.
- 128. I want to grow my [platform] following by collaborating with other creators. Write an outreach DM to a [creator in my niche] proposing a [collab / shoutout swap / podcast guest / joint live]. Keep it short and specific about the value exchange.
- 129. Write a "controversial opinion" post about [topic] that is genuinely interesting — not just inflammatory. State your position clearly, give 2 reasons why, acknowledge the counterargument briefly, and invite responses.

130. Write a content brief for a freelance writer to write an article about [topic] for [platform/blog]. Include: target keyword, audience, tone, structure, word count, internal links to include, and what makes this piece different from what already exists.

131. Write 5 newsletter issue subject lines and preview text for emails about these topics: [list 5 topics]. Each should feel personal, specific, and like something a friend would write — not a brand.

132. Write a "resource roundup" newsletter issue or post. Topic: best resources for [topic]. Include 5–7 tools, articles, or frameworks with a 2–3 sentence description of each and why it's worth using.

133. I'm repurposing a blog post into a YouTube video. Here's the blog post: [paste]. Rewrite it as a video script — conversational, spoken-word language, with a stronger hook, transitions that work verbally, and visual cues in brackets.

134. Write a "before and after" client story for social media. Before: [client situation]. After: [result achieved]. Format as a short-form story post with a CTA for others in the same "before" situation.

135. Write a week's worth of LinkedIn posts for a [freelancer / consultant / coach] in [niche]. Monday: industry insight. Tuesday: personal story. Wednesday: quick tip. Thursday: client result. Friday: opinion or reflection. Each post under 250 words.

136. Write a "what I wish I knew" post for someone starting out in [your field]. List 6–8 specific, honest things you'd tell your earlier self. Not generic advice — real, specific lessons.

137. Write a post or email about a book, tool, or framework that changed how I work. The resource: [name]. What it changed: [describe]. How I apply it now: [describe]. Keep it educational and specific.

138. Write a "quick tip" series: 10 short tips about [topic] that could each stand alone as a post. Each tip should be 1–2 sentences: specific, actionable, and immediately applicable.

139. Create a Pinterest pin description for [product/content]. Include the target keyword naturally, describe what they'll get, and include a CTA. Under 200 characters for the description. Write 5 variations.

140. Write an outreach email or DM to request a guest post on [blog/newsletter] in [niche]. Include: who I am, what I'd write about, why it's relevant to their audience, and links to 2 writing samples.

141. Write a "results in 30 days" post for [platform]. The result: [describe your or a client's result]. Break down exactly what was done in those 30 days — be specific and tactical. End with a takeaway for the reader.

142. Write 5 Reel/TikTok video concepts about [topic] that would work for someone with no video editing skills. Each concept: title, hook line, what to say in 30–60 seconds, and what to show on screen.

143. Write a post addressing the #1 question I get asked about [your service/niche]. The question: [state it]. Give a thorough, specific answer — treat it like a mini article, not a social post.

144. Write a "thank you" post for reaching [milestone: followers, revenue, clients, subscribers]. Make it genuine, credit the audience for why you got here, and give something back (a tip, a resource, or a commitment).

145. Write a 5-email sequence for promoting a live [webinar / workshop / event]. Email 1 (2 weeks out): Announce + reason to care. Email 2 (1 week out): What they'll learn. Email 3 (3 days out): Q&A or social proof. Email 4 (day before): Reminder + what to bring. Email 5 (day of): Last call + link.

146. Write a social media bio for [platform] that communicates: who I help, what outcome I deliver, and a reason to follow. Under 150 characters for Twitter/X. Full 300 words for LinkedIn. Short version for Instagram.

147. Write a comment to post on a viral LinkedIn/Twitter post in [niche] that adds genuine value, shows expertise, and drives people to check my profile. The viral post is about: [describe the topic].

148. Write a "product spotlight" post for [platform] that promotes [product] without being salesy. Lead with the problem it solves, describe who it's for, share one specific result or feature, and end with a low-pressure CTA.

150. I want to start a weekly [newsletter / video series / podcast] about [topic]. Write the "series bible" — a 1-page document defining: the name, the audience, the format, the tone, the unique angle, the frequency, and the first 8 episode topics.

151. Write a personal brand statement for [your name] who is a [role] helping [audience] achieve [outcome]. It should work as an Instagram bio, a LinkedIn headline, and a verbal introduction.

152. Write a "common mistakes" post about [topic]. List the 5 most common mistakes [your audience] makes. For each mistake: what they do, why it's wrong, and what to do instead. Specific, not generic.

153. Write a post explaining [complex concept in your niche] in simple terms. Use an analogy or metaphor to make it accessible to a beginner. End with why it matters practically.

154. Write a monthly "what I'm working on" newsletter section. Purpose: build connection, create accountability, and let subscribers follow your journey. Current month: [month]. What I'm working on: [describe]. What I'm learning: [describe]. What's been hard: [describe].

155. Write a series of 5 "micro-lesson" posts about [topic]. Each micro-lesson: a single concept explained in under 150 words with one actionable exercise or next step.

156. I need to grow my email list. Write a lead magnet concept, title, and landing page copy for a free resource on [topic] for [audience]. Make it something they'd pay for if it weren't free.

157. Write a post about an industry trend in [niche] that most people are ignoring. Identify the trend, explain why it matters now, and give a specific recommendation for how your audience should respond.

158. Write 10 call-to-action variations for the end of [blog posts / emails / social posts] that feel natural and don't come across as pushy. Vary the types: question, invitation, action, share, and reply.

159. Write a "behind the numbers" post revealing a specific business metric or milestone. Example: "Last month I sent [X] emails. Here's what I learned." Make it educational and specific — share what worked, what didn't, and what you're changing.

160. Write a social media post or email about why I do what I do — the real reason, not the professional one. Make it personal, honest, and specific. Connect it to the transformation I want to create for my audience.

SECTION 4: BUSINESS STRATEGY & OPERATIONS (Prompts 161-200)

161. Do a competitive analysis of my market. My business is [describe]. My main competitors are [list 2-3]. For each competitor, analyze: what they do well, what they do poorly, what gaps exist in their offer, and where I can differentiate.

162. Write a positioning statement for my business: [business name] helps [specific audience] who [specific problem or desire] get [specific outcome] unlike [alternative/competitor] because [differentiator].

163. Help me build an ideal customer profile (ICP) for [product/service]. I currently work with [describe current clients]. Ask me 5 clarifying questions, then build a detailed profile: demographics, psychographics, pain points, goals, objections, where they hang out, and what they search for.

164. I'm trying to decide between these two pricing strategies for my [service]: [Strategy A: hourly/project-based] vs. [Strategy B: retainer/productized]. Analyze both based on: income predictability, client relationships, workload, and my goal of [describe goal]. Give me a recommendation.

165. Help me package my services into 3 tiers. My current service is [describe]. My typical client needs: [describe]. My capacity: [X clients/month]. Build 3 packages (Basic, Pro, Premium) with clear scope, pricing logic, and target client for each.

166. Write a standard operating procedure for [process in your business]. Include: purpose, trigger, step-by-step process, tools required, and estimated time. Make it specific enough that someone new could do it without asking questions.

167. I'm trying to find my niche. I currently do [broad thing]. My background is [describe]. I've had the most success with [type of client/project]. Help me identify 3 specific niches I could own and evaluate each by: demand, competition, profitability, and fit.

168. Analyze my current revenue model: [describe how you make money]. Identify: what's working, what's vulnerable, what's missing, and 2-3 additional revenue streams I could add that would complement what I already do.

169. Write a business plan outline for [business idea]. Include sections for: executive summary, problem/solution, target market, competitive landscape, revenue model, marketing strategy, financial projections (placeholder), and operations. Paragraph notes under each section.

170. Run a SWOT analysis on my business: [describe your business, what you offer, your market, your stage]. Be specific and honest — this is for internal use, not marketing. Give actionable recommendations for each quadrant.

171. Help me plan my next 90 days. My revenue goal is [X]. My current situation is [describe]. My 3 priorities should be [list what you're considering]. Help me identify the highest-leverage actions and create a week-by-week outline.

172. I want to set better goals for [next quarter / next year]. Here's what I'm currently tracking: [list metrics]. Help me set 3 meaningful goals with clear success metrics, leading indicators (what I need to do weekly), and lagging indicators (the outcome).

- 173. I'm struggling with productivity. I'm working [X hours/day] but not getting traction on my most important work. Diagnose the likely causes based on this daily schedule: [describe]. Recommend a restructured schedule and 3 system changes.
- 174. Help me build a delegation plan. My current tasks include: [list everything you do]. Identify which tasks I should: (1) keep doing, (2) systematize and hand off, (3) outsource immediately. For each "outsource" task, suggest who should do it and at what cost.
- 175. I need to decide whether to [major business decision: e.g., hire someone / raise prices / pivot niche / launch a product]. Here's my situation: [describe]. Give me a framework to make this decision, the 3 questions I should answer before deciding, and your recommendation.
- 176. Write an onboarding checklist for a new client to complete before we start working together. The checklist should collect: all necessary assets, access credentials, brand guidelines, goals, key contacts, and any constraints.
- 177. I want to build a simple referral program for my [service/product] business. Design the program: who can refer, what the incentive is (for referrer and referee), how referrals are tracked, and how I promote it to existing clients.
- 178. Help me audit my current client roster. I have [X] clients. Here's a description of each: [describe]. Score each one on: profitability, enjoyment, referral potential, and growth potential. Identify which to prioritize, which to transition off, and which to clone.
- 179. I want to productize my service. My current service is [describe], which I deliver as [custom / project-based / hourly]. Help me turn it into a productized offer with: a clear name, fixed scope, fixed price, standard delivery timeline, and a sales page structure.
- 180. Write a quarterly business review template I can use to evaluate my business every 3 months. Include sections for: revenue vs. goal, top clients, top-performing services, biggest wins, biggest losses, key lessons, and priorities for next quarter.
- 181. I'm considering raising my prices. My current rates are [X]. The market rate appears to be [Y]. My capacity is [Z clients]. Help me build the case for raising prices: how to calculate the right new rate, when to do it, how to communicate it, and how to handle pushback.
- 182. Help me map my customer journey. My customer: [describe]. Stages from awareness to purchase: [list]. For each stage, identify: what they're thinking, what they're feeling, what content/touchpoints I should have, and what the friction points are.
- 183. I want to build a simple content-to-client pipeline. My goal is [X clients/month] from content alone. Help me design: what content I publish (platform, frequency, format), how I capture leads (lead magnet, email list), how I nurture them (email sequence), and how I convert them (offer, CTA).
- 184. Write a "year one" roadmap for a new freelance [type] business. Month by month outline covering: how to get first clients, how to refine the offer, when to raise prices, when to hire help, and when to productize.
- 185. I'm feeling burned out. Describe my situation: [working hours, client load, revenue, what's draining me]. Help me identify: root causes, immediate relief actions, and 3 structural changes to prevent recurring burnout.
- 186. Help me run a "energy audit" on my work. I do these tasks regularly: [list]. For each, rate: how much energy it takes vs. how much revenue/value it generates. Identify what to eliminate, automate, delegate, or double down on.

- 187. I want to add a passive or semi-passive income stream to my [service] business. My audience is [describe]. My expertise is [describe]. Suggest 5 specific product ideas with: format, price point, time to create, and estimated monthly revenue potential.
- 188. Write a "decision filter" — a set of 5 questions I can use before taking on any new client, project, or opportunity. The questions should help me evaluate: fit, profitability, sustainability, and alignment with my goals.
- 189. Help me set my rates correctly. My monthly expenses are [X]. My desired take-home is [Y]. I can take on [Z] clients. Calculate: my minimum hourly rate, recommended project minimum, and retainer sweet spot. Then compare to market rates for [your service].
- 190. I want to hire my first employee or serious contractor. Here's my current revenue and workload: [describe]. Help me determine: (1) can I afford to hire, (2) what role I should hire for first, (3) what the job description should include, and (4) where to find them.
- 191. Analyze this business idea: [describe idea]. Evaluate it on: market demand (is there a proven buyer?), competition (how crowded is it?), monetization (how will it make money and how much?), execution (how hard is it to build?), and fit (does it match my skills?). Give me an honest verdict.
- 192. Write a "minimum viable offer" for [business idea] that I could sell in the next 30 days with no product built. What would I pre-sell, at what price, to how many people, and how would I deliver it?
- 193. Help me write a business mission statement and vision statement for [business name]. Mission: why we exist (what we do and for whom). Vision: what the world looks like if we succeed. Keep both under 2 sentences. Specific, not generic.
- 194. I need to cut my expenses. My current monthly costs are [X]. Here's a breakdown: [list]. Identify which to cut immediately, which to renegotiate, which to downgrade, and which are worth keeping. Target: reduce by [Y]%.
- 195. Write a client offboarding process for when a project ends. Steps should cover: final delivery, payment, testimonial request, referral ask, file handover, access revocation, CRM update, and a 30-day follow-up.
- 196. I'm evaluating two business models: [Model A] vs. [Model B]. Help me compare them across: income potential, time requirements, scalability, client relationships, market demand, and personal fit. Give me a recommendation and the key trade-off.
- 197. Help me build a "CEO day" ritual — a weekly or monthly session where I work on the business (not in it). What should I review, decide, and plan in a 2-hour CEO day? Build the agenda.
- 198. Write a "lessons from year one" reflection template I can fill in after my first year in business. Sections: biggest wins, biggest failures, biggest surprises, what I'd do differently, what skills I built, what I wish I knew on day one, and goals for year two.
- 199. I want to scale my business from [current revenue] to [target revenue] in [timeframe]. My current model is [describe]. Help me identify the 3 highest-leverage levers I can pull and build a roadmap with quarterly milestones.
- 200. Write a "business health check" I can run monthly in 30 minutes. Include: 10 key metrics to track, what's healthy vs. concerning for each, and 5 questions to ask myself about where the business is heading.
